At initial recognition, financial assets are identified by purchasing price/issuing cost plus other expenses directly related to the purchase and issuance of those assets.

Financial liabilities

Financial liabilities of the Company include loans, trade payables, other payables and accrued expenses. At initial recognition and financial liabilities are determined by issuing price plus other expense directly related to the issuance of those liabilities.

Subsequent measurement after initial recognition

There are currently no regulations on revaluation of financial instruments after initial recognition.

2.5 . Foreign currency transactions

The foreign currency transactions during the year are converted into VND with the real exchange rate at the transaction date. Real exchange rates are determined as the following principles:

- For foreign currency transactions involving purchases and sales, the exchange rate applied is the rate specified in the foreign currency purchase and sale contracts between the Company and commercial banks;
- For transactions denominated in foreign currencies where the contract does not specify a particular exchange rate, the actual exchange rate at the transaction date is the average transfer buying and selling rate of the commercial bank with which the Company regularly transacts.

If the Company applies the actual transaction exchange rate as an approximate rate, the difference between this rate and the average transfer buying and selling rate does not exceed 1%.

Real exchange rate upon re-determining accounts derived from foreign currenciesat the date of the Consolidated Financial Statements is determined on the following principles:

- Monetary items denominated in foreign currencies with outstanding foreign currency balances are retranslated by the Company at the end of the accounting period by multiplying the foreign currency balance of each item by the difference between the exchange rate at the end of the period (based on the average transfer buying and selling rate of the commercial bank with which the Company regularly transacts) and the weighted average exchange rate for the period;
- For monetary items denominated in foreign currencies being demand deposits, the Company remeasures all foreign currency deposit account balances using the average transfer buying and selling rate of the commercial bank where the Company maintains its accounts at the end of the accounting period.

All sums of real exchange rates for foreign currency transactions in the period and real exchange rate upon re-determining accounts derived from foreign currencies at the end of the period are recorded immediately to results of business operations in accounting period.
